

Riot Breaks Up Disarmament Organization Meeting In Paris

FORMER ENVOY HOWLED DOWN AS HE SPEAKS

Houghton and Other Foreigners Refused Right to Address Gathering

Paris—(AP)—There were a number of bruised heads about Paris today as a result of a riot which broke up the meeting of the International Disarmament organization last night. In the tumult a number of foreign speakers, including former Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton of the United States, were howled down.

Police were called out, fists flew on several occasions before the eyes of distinguished visitors and former Premier Edouard Herriot, chairman of the meeting, banged his gavel futilely and asked: "Where is French politeness?"

A broadcast address by Senator William Borah was scarcely audible because of static and as soon as a translator began to read it in French boisterous jeering broke loose again.

A nationalistic meeting in another hall, held in protest against the alleged "political character" of the disarmament gathering, proceeded quietly at the same time.

Former Ambassador Houghton was interrupted by a fist fight which began just below the speaker's stand as he spoke the first paragraph of his address of greeting "from the millions of Americans united to call for the peaceful solution of international divergences." He was forced to sit down, unable to go farther.

M. Herriot was first to be silenced by the howlers. "The spirit must prevail over the brute forces of the world," he said, opening his address.

"Nonsense," shouted a large group in the center of the audience. Police were called and four of the youths, said to be members of the organization known as "the King's Henchmen" were thrown out. Fists began to fly as the demonstrators started their work of pacification. The meeting had to be suspended.

Miss Louise Weiss, who was a member of the League of Nations party on his trip to the United States next week, was howled down, as also was Joseph Joss, member of the German Reichstag. Herr Joss then resumed his speech under police protection, but he was interrupted by shouts of "Hear!" and by catcalls.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, noted British statesman, was greeted with howls as he rose to read messages from the archbishop of Canterbury, David Lloyd George and the British National Woman's council.

Former Premier Paul Painleve was cheered when he said France could not disarm until it had an assurance of security.

As former Ambassador Houghton concluded his first speech, the crowd was a riot of hand and feet. Two lines of police were formed and the former ambassador, with Lord Cecil, made his exit through the guard.

"I never saw anything like it in my life," said Mr. Houghton. Calm was restored only after the crowd had been ushered out by the police and the Marseillaise, with its "March on, march on, to victory or death" had been sung.

RUMOR SALARY CUTS FOR MOVIE STARS

No Statement Issued but Reports Say 20 Per Cent Slash Is Favored

Hollywood—(AP)—Film celebrities may soon have to resort to smaller, private swimming pools and use automobiles with fewer cylinders if there is any truth in a rumor that the high priced stars and directors are due for a 20 per cent pay slash.

Behind closed doors, the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors is in conference. New York representatives from all the large companies are here.

While no official statement has been issued, the report was that the officials have agreed to a 20 per cent reduction in salaries of the stars and directors. Just how the company can reduce salaries of individuals under contract has not been explained, but it was said the reported slash will take place in all the larger studios and apply to the high salaries.

Recently a group of motion picture theatre owners protested the high salaries paid actors, claiming the cost of the films was too high. They made particular reference to the salary of $30,000 weekly reported to be received by Constance Bennett.

Head-on Crash Saves Lives

Quick thinking and action of a veteran engineer saved the lives of his passengers when these two locomotives crashed at Pittsburgh, Pa. The engineer brought his train to a sudden stop when he saw the 200,000-ton freight engine, left skid past a block signal and bear down on him. He took the crash head-on rather than risk clearing a switch and having the freight engine strike a passenger coach. Twenty-five were injured, none seriously.

START WORK ON NEW PROJECTS IN APPLETON

Begin Excavation for New Ice Manufacturing Plant of Lutz Ice Co.

Although losing a day because of inclement weather, construction men at work on various building projects in the city made good progress during the past week. Work on several new projects was started last week and early this week.

Excavation for the new ice-manufacturing plant of the Lutz Ice Co. has been started on N. Superior-st. Workmen are experiencing some difficulty with the excavation because of the old concrete foundations of the malt buildings, which formally occupied that site.

It is expected to have the new Lutz building completed within the next two months. The work is being done by the Appleton Construction Co. and will cost approximately $30,000.

Rapid progress still is being made on the new home of the Appleton Post-Crescent at the northwest intersection of N. Superior and Washington-sts. Workmen however were forced to quit work last Monday because of bad weather. Last weekend they lost two days.

Every effort is being expended to get the structure under cover as soon as possible so that no more time will be lost. It is expected that the roof will be on by Dec. 15, according to construction men.

Set Garbed Stone Carved stone from Mankato, Minn., has been erected above the window levels and stretches along the south and east sides of the building. Nine more feet of stone work will be erected above the second story windows, according to construction men.

Steam fitters are progressing rapidly with their work and are preparing to provide temporary heat for the convenience of workmen. Plumbers also are moving forward with their "roughing in" work.

Plasterers are moving forward with the interior of the new postoffice building. Exterior construction is practically completed, including sidewalks and concrete driveways.

Temporary heating facilities already have been provided and windows have been covered to protect progress on the interior.

The new funeral home of the Hoh Furniture Co. on N. Superior-st. probably will be completed by next week, according to Frank Hoh. Plasterers have completed their work, and interior decorators are now painting woodwork and adding finishing touches.

A new front is being installed for the flower and candy shop to be operated at 112 E. College-ave by Arthur Mueller, Fond du Lac. The building is occupied by the Roach Sport shop. John Roach, proprietor, expects to complete his "closing out" sale next Monday, after which he will vacate the building.

The new women's apparel shop of Robert Sklar at 214 W. College-ave is nearing completion. The structure was formerly occupied by Hartman Furniture and Carpet Co.

A new display window is being installed and the interior is being redecorated. New fixtures and other equipment also is being installed.

Work on the new Eager Paint store on W. College-ave, east of the Hendricks-Ashauer Fire shop, also is progressing rapidly. Most of the concrete work has been completed. The structure will house a retail paint store and warehouse for paint products and accessories.

One Story High The new building will be one story high, and is to be constructed of buff colored brick and concrete blocks. The retail department will be in the front and the warehouse in the rear. The structure will be 40 feet wide by 80 feet long.

The new First English Lutheran church building is being placed under cover. Most of the roof structure has been sheathed. Exterior stone-work on the church building and parsonage has been completed.

Window sashes have been set in the church building, and workmen are completing exterior work. Concrete arches on the interior of the building have been erected.

It is expected the new parsonage of Mount Olive Lutheran church will be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1, according to the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer. Plasterers have completed the first coat, and early next week will start decorating the interior. Woodworkers probably will start their work the latter of next week or the first part of the following week, the Rev. Mr. Ziesemer says.

WERNER APPROVES PLAN FOR PAYMENT OF STREATOR BONDS

Illinois Company Given Permission to Retire $105,000 in Outstanding Debts

Judge Edgar V. Werner in circuit court this morning approved a proposed plan of the Streator Clay Manufacturing company of Streator, Ill., to use a fund of $105,000 to pay off the company's bonds which will mature up to and including Jan. 1, 1933, plus accrued interest of 7 per cent.

The fund remains from a total of $189,723.15 which was paid to the firm for a fire loss. All but $105,000 of the amount was used by the company in the reconstruction of its plants and property.

The action under which the proposal was submitted to the court here for approval was brought under a new state law. It was started in Appleton because the First Trust Company and M. D. Smiley, Appleton, are trustees of the firm. Many people residing in Appleton and vicinity hold bonds of the Streator company and about 50 of these attended the hearing this morning.

The original bond issue was dated Jan. 1, 1924, and up to the present time the firm has paid all interest and all maturing bonds as they came due. Upon payment of the $105,000 there will still be outstanding $140,000 in bonds, all maturing Jan. 1, 1933.

FRIDAY MARKS FORMAL OPENING OF TRADE EVENT

Decorative Lights Along College-ave to Be Turned on This Evening

"Oh lookit—I want Santa Claus to bring me a dolly like that—and I want him to bring me that train and fire engine."

Such conversation was common on College-ave Friday evening as children pressed their noses against the cold glass of display windows to view the exhibits placed there by merchants for the annual Christmas opening.

Friday evening marked the formal opening of the annual Yule trade event. The opening will continue Saturday. Today was expected to be the banner day, with shoppers coming to the city from throughout the entire Appleton trade area, embodying towns, villages and cities within a radius of 20 miles.

Although the decorative lighting system installed on College-ave for the event was not lighter because of a misunderstanding, store windows were resplendent in Christmas decorations. Christmas trees and other decorations mounted on the fronts of retail establishments were lighted and helped create a real holiday spirit.

Exactly 1,040 red, green and yellow lights installed along College-ave from Armyory G to the Chicago and Northwestern railroad crossing will be lighter at 7 o'clock Saturday evening, it was announced this morning by the chamber of commerce retail division.

Employees of the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. Saturday morning putting the lighting system into shape for tonight. The lighting system is being financed by the chamber division in cooperation with the city.

Every effort has been made by the division to make this year's Christmas opening a success. Letters were sent to most merchants of the city asking them to cooperate by decorating their stores.

Most merchants had completed their store and window displays by Thanksgiving day. Many had their decorations completed early in the week.

EXPLOSIVES SET OFF BY "ANTI-WAR RAYS," INVENTOR DECLARES

Chicago—(AP)—The Herald and Examiner said today that a young German scientist had set up in Chicago a machine which he represented as being capable of producing rays which may revolutionize warfare by making modern explosives useless to their possessors.

Kurt Schimkus of Berlin, who referred to the rays as "anti-war rays," was named as the inventor. The newspaper said plans were being made for a demonstration of the machine at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and that negotiations were under way to have the United States government buy the rights to the apparatus.

Similar demonstrations have been reported from Germany where submarine mines submerged in water were exploded and where cartridges buried under ground have been touched off by the rays.

It is not necessary to know the exact location of an explosive to explode it," Schimkus was quoted as saying. "The rays are sent forth as an expanding cone on front of the transmitter so that if the machine is shifted from left to right and up and down the rays will find their mark wherever it is, destroying the enemy's ammunition stores either in the field or at sea, or overhead in aircraft."

"The ray's range can be increased by using the same method on a magnified scale." Schimkus arrived in Chicago recently and is working with Baron P. H. von Schelesburg.

GOES TO CONVENTION Dr. R. C. Mullenix, professor of zoology at Lawrence college, left Friday for Chicago. He will attend the annual convention of the American association of University Professors.

THRILLING - HEALTHFUL - SAFE

The child's weight brings the Gee Gee Horse to about position "B" as shown in the above drawing. The front assembly bends back at joints "A" to shaded position indicated. With a slight shifting of his weight forward the spring lifts him up to the top of the stroke, and front assembly and horse go back to normal position. The motion is slow, easy up and down movement, or a fast gallop, depending on how the child desires to operate the horse. The strong steel spring flexes the entire length. The front assembly carries part of the operator's weight so that at no time is there great concentrated strain on the spring. The toy is entirely safe. The easy operating Gee Gee brings every muscle of a child into action, mildly to be sure, but just the proper amount to bring full development. It is one of the best exercisers a child can have. Kids love its thrilling, rollicking action. It is exciting yet the child cannot be thrown, tipped off or hurt in any way.

Housewives Respond Generously In Drive For Old Clothing

DONATIONS ARE COLLECTED BY SCOUT GROUPS

More Than 600 Bundles of Clothes Subscribed in Friday's Canvass

Appleton housewives are responding wholeheartedly in the drive for old clothing and furniture for needy people, the house-to-house canvass conducted Friday by valley council of boy scouts revealed. At 8:30 Saturday morning scouts with four trucks toured the city, gathering bundles of old clothes.

More than 600 bundles of clothes were subscribed by housewives in the canvass conducted by scouts yesterday, according to M. G. Clark, valley scout executive. Fifty-two bundles were subscribed over the telephone and through the newspaper coupon campaign, he stated.

The old clothes collected this morning were taken to a room reserved in Hotel Northern by John Brill, proprietor. Distribution of the old clothing and furniture will be handled by the special committee of the Appleton Welfare and Relief council. Mrs. Paul Eckbert is committee chairman.

Approximately 4,000 homes were visited by scouts Friday. Two hundred and fifty scouts of the 10 troops participated in the canvass. They worked under the direction of scoutmasters and patrol leaders until 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The youngsters used maps which were charted for them by Mr. Clark. The city was divided into 10 sections, one troop to each section.

Three trucks of the city street department and one owned by the Art-Kilborn Electric Co. were used in the collection Saturday. Six scouts accompanied each truck, pointing out the homes where housewives were preparing bundles of clothes.

"In many cases yesterday, housewives were not at home or were out of the city," Mr. Clark said. "Housewives who were not solicited may phone Mrs. Eckbert or the scout office, and the bundles will be gathered in another collection next Saturday."

ONEIDA INDIAN DENIES HE TOOK CASH, JEWELRY

Lawrence Baird, an Oneida Indian charged with larceny, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg yesterday afternoon and trial of the case was set for Dec. 2. Baird is being held under bonds of $4,000.

Baird, according to St. Paul Star, district attorney, admitted the thefts. However, when he appeared in court he demanded a jury trial declaring "I guess I know what my rights are."

This is the second time Baird has been arrested on the same charge. The first case was nolle by the district attorney because of lack of evidence. Later, however, more evidence was produced and a second warrant was issued. Baird is charged with stealing cash totaling $95.75, a watch, ring and flashlight, valued at $40, from Fred Hoggman, Sr., town of Oneida.

6 CASES ON CALENDAR FOR CIRCUIT COURT

Six cases are set for trial at a special session of the September term of circuit court which will open at 10 o'clock Monday morning before Judge Edgar V. Werner at the courthouse. The cases, which are listed below, are to be tried in the order of their listing, according to Sydney M. Shannon, chief of courts: Krasno Quality Egg company versus Sidney Kurland; Howie and McGuire, et al, versus Tillie Schabo, et al; W. A. Zimmerman to John M. Ballen; John Stevens versus John P. Edwards; John Wundtlich versus Garvey Weyenberg Construction company; Fietzer versus Niles.

COMMITTEE APPROVES OF BILLS FOR CITY

The finance committee met at city hall Friday afternoon, and approved bills to be presented at the next meeting of the common council. The street and bridge committees have already met, which leaves the committee and the planning commission for next week. The police and license has before it the application for a Class A permit from Ervin Rohoff, 722 E. Wisconsin, and the planning commission must consider a petition from Frank Newman to have lot 8, block 45, Grand Chute plat included in the business district.

He crossed the Great Lakes and came down in Canada after fighting a severe storm high in the air.

No Soap For Russians When They Take Baths

Moscow—(P)—A great part of Soviet Russia's population has to go out for its bath. The public bath house, an institution in old Russia, continues just as important a fixture in the new. Men, women and children still make their way in great numbers through the streets to the "baths," carrying towels and clean clothing. The rapid population increase in Moscow and other large centers has created a demand which presents bathing facilities are unable to supply and an increase in their number is planned.

In the better public baths, men have the choice of three classes, ranging from the luxury of a swimming pool, shower and tub to the simplicity of buckets of water with which they douse themselves. Women have only two classes, and swimming pools for them are rare. The price ranges from 25 to 45 kopeks, with towels extra.

Then there is the deluxe bath, costing seven roubles (about $3.50), where the affluent Russian can surround himself with the luxury of a sumptuously furnished three room bathing apartment.

The chief difficulty for bathers lies in the shortage of soap, not to have had here at even the most exorbitant prices. Many meet the situation by beating their bodies with bundles of birch twigs, the theory being that this opens the pores and permits steam or hot water to complete the cleansing process.

"A first class" bath, which costs 45 kopeks gives a man the use of the swimming pool, after he has had his bath—and the choice of tub or shower, often in a private compartment. Second class baths have only showers or tubs, no swimming pool, and the accommodations are more simple.

In third class, where the bather stands on a bare stone floor, scrubbs himself first, then rinses off with buckets of water, there is the Russian equivalent of a Turkish bath. Here the bather enters a small room filled with steam and is able to soak as long as he likes. Mixed bathing, so common up until a few years ago, now is taboo.

JAPS HIT AT STIMSON FOR ALLEGED SLUR

Secretary Says Statement Published in Tokio Not Accurate

ances Japan had given against hostilities in that quarter.

Meeting newspapermen at his morning press conference, the secretary said the Japanese foreign office had been "misinformed" when it took exception to a statement he did not make.

(This Japanese statement was issued on the basis of a dispatch sent to Tokyo by a Japanese News agency mistakenly quoting the secretary.)

Refers to Transcript To make his position clear, Stimson marked for the correspondents certain portions of a stenographic transcript of what he had said, not for direct quotation, in yesterday's press conference. He authorized quotation of these statements today, saying he would stand on them.

They follow: "On the 23rd of November, I asked our ambassador in Tokio to tell Baron Shidehara, the foreign minister of Japan, that I had seen with great apprehension press reports giving the impression that the army commanders of Japan were planning military expeditions against the forces in China in the neighborhood of Chinchow and that I sincerely trusted that there was no basis for that report."

"The following day, Nov. 24, I was assured by Baron Shidehara, the foreign minister of Japan, through Ambassador Forbes, that he and the secretary of war and the chief of staff were all of them agreed that there should be no hostile operations toward Chinchow and that military orders to that effect had been issued."

"In view of that it is difficult for me to understand the press report about the advance of General Honjo's army."

In marking the stenographic copy, the secretary changed the word "understand" in the last sentence to "credit." Newspapermen objected that this would change the sense, and he said "credit" was what he had meant to say yesterday, but that since the word "understand" was in his original statement he would allow it to stand.

TOKIO AROUSED

Tokio—(P)—Through an apparent misinterpretation of news dispatches from the United States regarding the position of Secretary of State Stimson on the Manchurian situation, a spokesman for the Japanese foreign office expressed alarm today concerning the attitude of the United States toward the dispute in Manchuria.

(The news from Washington mistakenly quoted by Japanese news agency sources was not a paraphrase of what Secretary Stimson said. It was material which came from various sources, much of which previously had been published as statements of fact. News dispatches which did not themselves quote Stimson were erroneously published as direct quotations.)

In due time," said the foreign office spokesman, "the government expects to make a public statement after referring Mr. Stimson's statement as published here to Ambassador Debuchi at Washington for confirmation."

"In view of the remarks attributed to him in dispatches from the United States, it is to be wondered if Mr. Stimson has studied Article 1, Clause 4 of the nine-power treaty dealing particularly with the question of countering action against the security of friendly states."

Seid to China "By untimely intervention, as described in dispatches, Mr. Stimson's action might be taken as an indication of helping China unduly in violation of the nine-power pact."

"If the United States takes such a stand as might be deduced from the assertions attributed to Mr. Stimson, then it might easily be interpreted that Washington countenances the actions of Chang Hsueh-Liang."

In the statement attributed to Mr. Stimson in the dispatches, may, as we view it, result in a stiffening of China's attitude regarding withdrawal from the Chinese region and may encourage Chang's adamant stand."

"If the statement was intended to pacify the Chinese, it may have the opposite effect and indirectly, should the Chinese refuse to withdraw, should in the great war, be instrumental in leading to an actual Sino-Japanese clash at Chinchow."

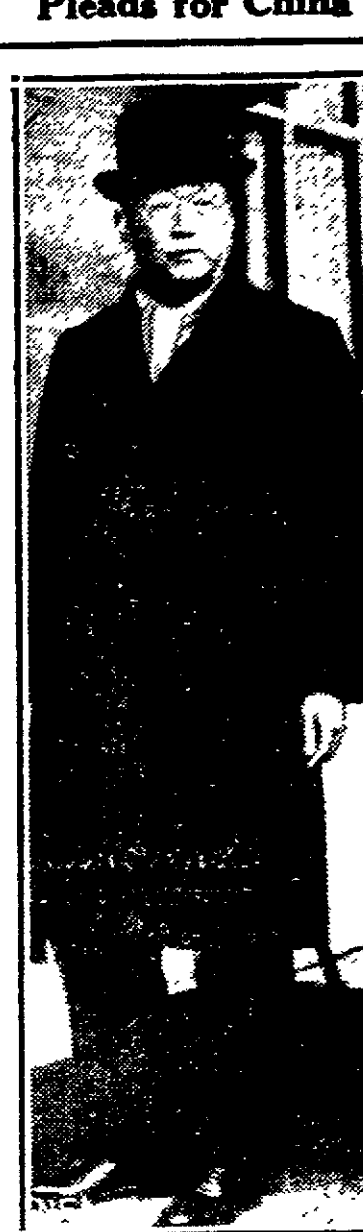

DEMANDS DATA

Washington—(P)—The state department was called upon today by Senator Johnson, Republican, California, to make public all notes dealing with the Manchurian situation.

"We have had enough of secret diplomacy," said Johnson in commenting on the turn of affairs in Manchuria. "I ought to have been in the open for after all, in case anything should arise it is our people who will be involved."

Johnson is ranking member of the foreign relations committee. He left no doubt he intends to bring up the whole Manchurian situation in congress.

WALKER ASSAILED FOR APPEARANCE FOR TOM MOONEY

San Francisco—(P)—As James J. Walker set about to pay his first visit to Tom Mooney in San Quentin prison today the San Francisco Chronicle printed on its front page a series of critical newspaper editorials of his entry into the Mooney case. Excerpts were reproduced from the New York Evening Post, Barnard, N. Y. Bulletin, Pacific Rural Press and the San Francisco Examiner.

Neither San Francisco morning paper had an editorial today on the visit of the New York mayor, although each has previously criticized his presence in California, to seek a pardon for the man convicted of murder in connection with the bombing of a parade in San Francisco in 1935.

Going to San Quentin "Just as a lawyer to see my client," Mayor Walker adopted for transportation a private yacht, the Rejoice, owned by C. E. Blanchard, San Francisco banker. The mayor does not care for motor travel. He thinks automobiles go much too fast.

Plans have been completed for the Mooney pardon application hearing by Gov. James Rolph, Jr., next Tuesday in the supreme court chambers of the state building here.

"The proceedings," said Governor Rolph, "will be conducted with all the dignity befitting the place in which they will be held. All of the rules of conduct imposed by the supreme court upon those who have business before that body will be observed."

URGES SHORTER HOURS, HIGHER PAY FOR WOMEN

New York—(P)—Shorter hours and better pay for women were advocated today by Miss Mary Anderson, as "an investment for national prosperity."

The chief of the federal women's bureau asserted that if all unemployed could buy what they need to maintain the American living standard, "the danger of industrial depressions would vanish."

She addressed an American Women's association conference on "The Trained Woman and the Economic Crisis."

"Wages have been reduced more than cost of living in the past two years," Miss Anderson said. "Since 1929 while cost of living has declined 12 per cent, the income of factory workers, not including salaried employees, has gone down 57 per cent."

HUGE RADIO SET REQUIRES HOTEL FOR ITS CABINET

Apparatus Designed to Bring Music to Every Room in Building

New York—(P)—How would you like to run a radio receiver, so massive that it requires the space of a large hotel as a cabinet?

El M. Lourie, young engineer, does and gets a tremendous kick out of his job. So enthusiastic does he become sometimes that he forgets to sleep, particularly when he gets lost in some problem.

This particular radio receiver really is in two sections, one close to the roof of the Hotel New Yorker and the other on a lower floor. The roof apparatus is the radio receiving equipment with the most advanced heart of a public address system.

Wires lead from the two radio rooms to loudspeakers in sleeping rooms, hall rooms, reception rooms and about every place in the building at which it is desired to pipe music, coming over the air or originating in the hotel itself.

The main receiver looks more like a broadcast transmitter than a radio set.

In addition to four tuning units it contains several racks of amplifiers using 250 tubes in pushpull parallel circuit designed that the addition or subtraction of half of the speakers in the building would have no effect on the volume level.

The intricate wiring provides that microphones may be cut in at various points in the hotel as well as the radio room itself so that entertainment or speeches may be carried from many points in the building.

The master receiver—really four of them—will handle four radio programs at once, a switch being provided at each speaker for selection.

Besides running these twin-outfits, Young Lourie often is seen hurrying through the hotel with a so-called magic box. It contains a dial and a series of buttons in addition to a cable attached to a plug with a half dozen or more prongs.

He goes to the ball room and hurries over to a wall receptacle. He makes a hasty connection and starts operating the controls on the box. Suddenly music from a radio station fills the room. His box is a remote control device that operates a separate receiver installed in a desk in the roof radio room.

MIXED MUSIC MENUS POPULAR IN HAVANA

Havana—(P)—The combination of open air restaurants, la Parisienne and jazz zands a la Americana, originally designed for tourists' enjoyment has taken the fancy of Havana's natives.

POTASH INDUSTRY DEVELOPS IN WEST

Carlsbad, N. M.—(P)—Potash mining here is being progressed to such an extent that shipments of the fertilizer has been going out in train loads.

Presence of potash in the earth was discovered when oil tests were being made several years ago. Since then development work has been going forward and an organization for mining and distributing the potash has been built up here.

The unfinished potash is shipped directly for use as a fertilizer.

CONFERENCE SHOWS HINDUS ARE HUMAN AND FUN-LOVING

However, Visitors Showed They Could Be Serious When Necessary

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—Don't run away with the idea that all these Hindu men and women, who were at London for the Indian Round Table Conference were always thinking of such things as minorities or religion, or threatening to go back to India and once more start hunger strikes or boycotts of English goods.

They are serious when serious things are to be considered, but when they relax at a tea party they are quite as cheerful and human and fun-loving as any people one could choose to meet. Here are just a few sample parns:

The little daughter of a famous advocate of India for the Indians was attending a school for girls in England. One of her English friends, having seen the pictures of how Gandhi went clothed in this damp cold English weather, asked the Hindu lass how she kept warm. They both about nine. "The little brown maiden from the East promptly replied:

"He is sustained by his infernal fires."

"Then there is the story of the tall, sturdy bearded chap who had for long been studying philosophy in German universities. He had no time for such "nonsense" as Gandhi preached. But when he came home, he was astounded to find that his mother was an ardent adherent of the Gandhi. He took her in hand and argued with her grandly for a time. Then he said half in anger:

"Mother, dear, you are stupid, but honest."

"That is not surprising, my son," said she with deadly demureness. "You see, I inherit my honesty from my son."

To get the full point of the next yarn, a little explanation is necessary. The Agha Khan is the spiritual leader of the 10,000,000 Moslems of India. One of the most beautiful buildings in all the world is the Taj Mahal near Agra, a superbly lovely white marble mausoleum finished in 1650 and built at the order of one of the Mogul emperors in memory of his favorite wife. Beautiful at all times, it is especially so at night when the moon is shining.

Now one of the Hindus at the tea party told of an English woman who had made a very rapid tour of the vast subcontinent of India with her husband. She got things badly muddled in her memory, because, when asked what was the most beautiful thing she had seen, she replied confidently, and earnestly:

"The Agha Khan bathed in moonlight."

BURMESE REBEL KING GOES TO EXECUTION

Rangoon, Burma—(P)—Saw San, known better as "Golden Crow," a Burmese rebel king, was executed at Tharavaddy jail early today.

The execution took place almost on the eve of the opening of the Burma round table conference in London, which is prepared to give Burma "a self-government for which 'Golden Crow' sacrificed his own life and the lives of hundreds of his followers."

The rebel king appealed to the high court, the governor of Burma and victory of India in vain. His friends urged him to take his case to the privy council in London, but he decided, as he expressed it, to "take the machine of a patriot and a soldier."

DIVORCE "SPEEDUP" IN ARKANSAS NOW DELAYED IN COURT

Quick Action Will Not Be Possible Until Next Fall

Hot Springs, Ark.—(P)—Quick divorces in Arkansas have been slowed up until this fall.

Then the state supreme court will decide whether there will be any at all under the new $90-day law passed by the last legislature. Possibility of divorces being granted here while litigation over the act was pending was removed when Chancellor W. R. Duffie adjourned chancery court until September, about the time the appellate court reconvenes.

Several suits had been filed under the law and were scheduled to come on soon for hearing. Opponents claimed the law's operation was suspended when it was attacked in supreme court, but, lacking definite word from officials, Chancellor Duffie said he would consider each case on its merits.

Thousands on "Anti" Petitions Two days before the law became effective, the Home Protective association, organized to combat the act, filed with the secretary of state approximately 1,000 signatures on petitions asking referendum on the law at the next general election.

Validity of the petitions was attacked by a group of Hot Springs attorneys, and, advised by the attorney general, the secretary of state held them invalid.

Attorneys for the Home Protective association promptly filed a petition for review in the supreme court and included in it an attack on the law's constitutionality. The supreme court sat September 23, as the date for a hearing.

If the petitions are held valid, the act will be referred to the voters and its operation held in abeyance until after the 1932 election. Hot Springs "reno"-rated While this controversy was going on, preparations had been made here for Hot Springs to become a divorce mecca, rivaling Reno. A divorce colony springs up and attorneys were besieged with requests for information concerning divorce requirements under the new law.

Representative J. S. Campbell, youthful author of the bill, moved here from DeQueen and formed a law partnership with Representative Elmer Tackett, who helped lead the fight for passage of the act.

At 6 o'clock Saturday morning the mercury registered 17 degrees above zero and at noon it registered 38 degrees above.

Audit Bureau of Circulation
Circulation Guaranteed

AND WHY NOT?

The two young men, nonresidents of Wisconsin, who held up a bank near Kenosha early this week, have been apprehended due to the fact that an assistant cashier at the bank had a gun, knew how to use it and did so.

The fact that banks are left in Wisconsin to defend themselves even in the face of a suggested program of greatly increasing their taxes may be but a matter of fleeting moment to some of the authorities but something occurred when these bandits were arrested that should fix our gaze intently upon the case.

One of the bandits stated to the sheriff that the holdup was planned because these young men, 21 and 24 years of age, had heard of "the easy bank jobs that could be pulled off in Wisconsin."

Their information was correct. They were following their trade with care. They were coming to the right state. They actually stepped into the proper territory. The bank door was open. The money was there. But a jinx was on their trail. They happened to go into a bank that had already been held up and whose personnel, thoroughly angered at the supine misconduct of the state of Wisconsin in failing to make any genuine effort to do anything in their behalf, had loaded firearms ready and had installed bullet-proof glass with convenient firing holes in their defense.

So when they said "Hands up," the assistant cashier reached for his gun and started firing through a convenient hole while the bandits' bullets flattened against the specially prepared glass. Even then, and badly wounded, they would not have been apprehended had not the banker chased and fired a shot gun into the rear of their auto. They had to find medical assistance and the rear of their auto bore silent but strong evidence against them.

Architects who design future bank buildings in Wisconsin should familiarize themselves with the old block houses constructed by our pioneers of more than a century ago in defense against the Indians. Banks and bank stockholders are expected to take good-naturedly the great increase in their taxes suggested by the governor, though no part of the increase, and little else, is ever used to protect them.

Between paying enormously increased taxes to the state and 500 per cent increases to insurance companies to protect them against theft, the banks will eventually come to the plan of setting aside a certain sum of money each year as tribute to the Capones and their gangs. Such a statement is not as far off as may seem. That is the very natural result of the conditions under which we live.

TREASURE HUNTING ON THE LUSITANIA

Another adventure bearing the earmark of a Jules Verne tale is underway. It is the Lake-Railay Lusitania expedition to explore that famous Cunarder which was torpedoed and sunk May 7, 1915 eight miles off the coast of Ireland.

The success of the Italian salvage ship Artiglio in uncovering the gold in the bullion room of the sunken Egypt was due entirely to the efforts of deep sea divers working at unusual and dangerous depths. The hazards of their profession were enhanced many-fold in that operation and it was only on the brightest and sunniest days that the divers had any vision of their surroundings.

It is Simon Lake who is on the trail of the Lusitania—Lake of submarine fame. Through a steel tube lowered to the top deck of the Lusitania lying 175 feet below the surface, the divers will leave a high pressure chamber direct to the ship's deck. With powerful underwater lighting facilities and methods of photographing the ship's interior, salvage operations will be simplified.

When the Lusitania went down eighteen minutes after being torpedoed by the German submarine, she carried a valuable cargo. The divers searching her cabins and luxurious salons will find much of this treasure and many relics of historical interest, but at the same time they will be confronted with evidence of the sudden cessation of life and that the greatest treasure lost in this catastrophe was the 1,198 men and women who found their graves there.

The loss of these men and women, many of them Americans, valuable far beyond the range of treasury ratings, stirred a nation to arms. No salvage operations of steel tubes can ever restore that treasure nor the thousands of other human souls who went down in the whirlpool of war which followed the sinking of this ship.

PROPOSED BANKING LAWS

Until a copy of the bill is received final judgment must be reserved concerning the proposed alterations in the banking laws of Wisconsin, but the outline of the bill explained in the governor's message indicates that the more important features have been concluded satisfactorily to the Interim Committee on Banking as well as the chief executive.

The governor states that three factors have been primarily responsible "for the difficulties of our financial institutions, (1) the economic depression, (2) management and (3) over-banking."

The first one may be readily enough dismissed because the depression did not really weaken banks as much as it exposed weaknesses already existing. Banks that cannot stand hard times as well as times of plenty are failing entirely in their mission. The other announced reasons are in fact the cause of most bank woes and the primary one is management or rather mismanagement.

The governor proposes to eliminate politics as far as may be from banking by taking the banking department out of politics and putting it under the civil service law. Next there is to be created an advisory counsel of five, an appeal board over the commissioner of banking.

This board will apparently displace the present political board consisting of the governor, attorney-general and secretary of state.

Then the commissioner of banking is to be given some real authority and not, as the governor now insists, mere authority to close a bank when things are bad but to prevent them from becoming bad. In the matter of over-banking the commissioner is to be empowered not only to refuse further bank charters in communities already well supplied with banking facilities but to compel consolidation or gradual and sensible liquidation of unneeded banks or, where that is advisable, the replacement of management that shows itself dispositionally unable to conduct its affairs on the sound plane that must be required for stability in all sorts of weather.

Under present conditions the people are somewhat deluded by the announcement that banks are under the control or supervision of the government. Those expressions generate confidence. People have faith in their government, in its good and high purposes, in its desire and duty to protect their interests.

It will surprise a great many that such measures as these are necessary. Generally the public expects that the banking department be clothed with far-reaching powers, surely sufficient authority to compel adherence to the sound underlying principles of all financial transactions.

Certainly when the management of a bank so conducts its affairs as to show its incapacity for conducting them safely, the government cannot tolerate the continuance of such a management in authority. Oftentimes that sort of management is able by many methods of log-rolling or perhaps friendship to be voted back into authority but the provision to prevent this by authorizing the banking department to dismiss such authority is seriously needed.

Overbanking of course is hurtful. Economic depressions help no financial institution. But the big essential in banking, even more so than in any other business, is sound management.

THE "BONAFIDE" Hoboes Union of the United States of America is going to have a convention in Chicago in January. The "King" has called the meeting so he can abdicate, settle down and go to work. The mayor says he'll run 'em out of town. The king demands police protection. . . he says a hobo, to be a member of the hobo union, must be an American citizen. . . "Hoboes," explains the king, "are not in the same category as bums and tramps" . . . so there you are. . . a hobo is not a bum or tramp, who are not unionized. . . of course, the hoboes have no more money than the bums or tramps and we doubt if they're taken any more baths. . . but they're a select group. . . anyway, if business is as bad as some fellows complain, there'll be a lot of business men showing up at the hoboes' convention. . .

There's one nice thing about coming back to work on the Friday after Thanksgiving: it tastes like Monday, it feels like Monday, it sounds like Monday.

But it isn't.

It's Friday, with the week-end still ahead. Great institution, Thanksgiving.

The C. E. tells us that statistics show more calls for the doctor immediately after Thanksgiving than at any other time of the year. Write that one on the top of your menu next year.

Thanksgiving isn't a national holiday anyway—it's a food-cramping marathon.

WE GOTTA LET YOU IN ON A SECRET.

Hardly more than a month from now will be New Year's Eve, Y'know, when people who are usually content to go to the movies, read the paper, and attend church on Sunday, do the QUEEREST things.

Anyway, there's one group that gets together and does whuppie to a fare-thee-well. Then, instead of going to bed, they go to work.

It's the group who design the new women's hats to be brought out next fall.

Anyway, you can't help but feel that way about it.

That's about what people expected—Japan and China stopped fighting long enough for the League of Nations and the United States to appoint a committee to settle the oriental problems, and then went back to fighting again.

Parleys, treaties and conferences are all right, the Japs and Chinese think. But gosh, we can't let 'em interfere with a good fight.

Like the fat man who said he'd go on a diet as long as he did it between his regular meals.

That story the other day, about the law student at Michigan who believed that public men do not hear what is said to them when they meet the common people, is a dandy. The student was presented to the governor of Michigan recently when the governor spoke at Ann Arbor.

"I," said the student, anxious to test his theory, "killed my grandmother today."

"I'm very glad to make your acquaintance," said the governor as he shook hands.

Johnny J. Raskob wants the Democrats to re-submit the dry issue to the people. Awright, Johnny, politics is politics. But wouldn't it be swell if everyone could just forget all about the dry issue—all about it?

Just Folks

BEAUTY

The love of beauty once possessed
Outlives the sordid dust and grime,
And holds its dwelling in the breast
Against the ravages of time.

And this is why a woman wan
And grayed and beaten by defeat,
From day to day will struggle on
To keep an ugly dwelling neat.

Day after weary day will see
Her battling with the dirt and dust,
Fighting the filth of poverty
Because her nobler nature must.

So fond of beauty humans are
That often in a quiet room
A woman fills with stones a jar
And brings a lily bulb to bloom.

SILLY SEED IS INTENDED FOR JAYS AND GREAT GAWKS

Some naturalists contend that the great gawk is extinct, but from the inquiries coming to this column it is quite evident the bird still survives. Then, too, if he is extinct, why do the big nestrum people import so much silly seed to feed to such birds?

"Constipation," says a bulletin sent to the great gawk family by one such nestrum vendor, "is such an insidious disease! It steals upon us like a thief in the night and saps our strength and impairs our vitality."

"Uh-huh. That probably accounts for the demand for silly seed. Victims of the 'insidious disease' become so weakened, especially in the mind, that they would probably steal the canary's seed if some philanthropic mail-order firm advised it."

"Being a very busy man," the same nestrum circular quotes a credulous customer, "probably a purely fictitious one," "being just terribly busy." I went on a little tour of visits to acquaintances of mine who were sojourning in hospitals, sanatoriums, mad houses and the like, and in talking over their divers complaints they drew up a kind of composite report and advised me to visit and as follows: Alas and alack, had I only known how dangerous it was to skip a movement—But being so busy in my business I neglected my elimination one morning, and now look at me. Try to pinch of silly seed before it is too late. If you put this matter off the sparrows may beat you to it."

Seriously, the humor in this is not the plight of the jays and great gawks who got so wrapped up in their little rackets that they allow their powerful intellects to relax a bit from concentration on their bowel function. The funny part of it is that these jays and great gawks, really consider themselves quite intelligent.

This gorkified imported bird seed is harmless enough in any case, if you're simple enough to pay the price. Compared with its cultivated relative, flaxseed, this expensive silly seed is a crude article and even for medicinal or therapeutic purposes it is inferior to flaxseed in all respects. This is apt to hurt me more than it will you, but once I swore to Hippocrates to do as much good as I can even if it hurts my business. Real doctors are destroying their own business every day; why shouldn't I?

Better stop here, you folks from Connecticut and Scotland. If you read any further it may cost you a shilling.

In rare instances retardation or failure of the regular evacuation of the bowels is due to disease, and when it is the condition is a serious one which demands the best medical or surgical treatment, and no trifling. In 9 cases out of a hundred, however, constipation is merely a bad habit, and most or all of the unpleasant symptoms the victim feels are due not to the constipation, but to the untoward effects of the rostrums or other artificial habitually employed a d to anxiety and introspection. I've told you here time and again how to overcome the habit, but you're so thoroughly misinformed you can't get it. So I've put it all in a little lesson (No. 16) in the ways of health—"The Constipation Habit." Send a stamped envelope bearing your address, and I'll send you the lesson for your copy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
$20 For Education

Medical colleague writes: "I tried (a proprietary semi-secret nostrum) for the injection treatment of her. The result was unsatisfactory, and besides this solution cost $20 for about two cures." (—) (M. D.)

Answer—I got pinched for eating past the Tonerville trolley car while the Wednesday afternoon Club still had her left foot touching the ground. The village constable yanked me right upstairs over the fire house, where the justice of the peace was in session. It cost me $5 in cash and an hour of my time. But I considered it cheap education. I have printed here several warnings against the use of any secret nostrums for the ambulant treatment of hernia. Competent physicians prepare their own solution, of simple medicines, and the most satisfactory solutions are no more expensive than any ordinary medicine. I am glad to give any doctor a simple formula which is satisfactory for this treatment. I am not qualified to teach the technique of the method, but I will gladly refer any doctor to a colleague who will teach the technique.

Saccharine
I dislike sugar (cannot afford it, being overweight). Is saccharine safe to use in place of sugar in cooking and in tea and coffee? (D. D. N.)

Answer—Nutrition authorities who investigated the question years ago concluded that it is safe to use up to 5 grains of saccharine in food daily. It is unwise to take more than that. In fact I advise that you take no saccharine at all. Just cut down your total sugar consumption to a reasonable daily allowance. Any bad results from indulgence in sugar are due to EXCESS, not to sugar.

Artificial Food Products
Have commercial canned tomato juice and "cultured" buttermilk real food value? Your column is an education in itself. May you be well and happy when your grandchildren are men and women. (J. S.)

Answer—Yes, indeed, both are good wholesome foods. 'Fraid the outlook is not so dreary as that. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

BRAVE Coppy was the last to take his turn and do his best to make the wee fire engine travel safely down the little street. The fire dog kept on running fast. They reached the engine house, at last. The others gathered round as Coppy jumped down off the seat.

"Into the house we'll push this truck," said he. "And I hope we have luck." Then Scouty broke right in and said, "We'll have to turn it round. It goes in back first, you can see. This should be easy as can be. First we'll unhitch the dog. Then roll the engine over the ground."

So, as his long tail swayed and switched, the slim hound shortly was unhitched. He ran right to his little stall, where he stayed day and night. "He sure knows just where he belongs." He says there till he hears fire gongs," said Clowny. "I'll bet when he's hitched, it is a thrilling sight."

The Tynmites then all lent a hand to make the little engine stand face out, as 'twas supposed to face. It didn't take them long. Said Scouty, "Gee, that plan is slick. The truck can get away real quick. Say, shall we wait until we hear another changing gong?"

"Oh, no," said Coppy. "I suggest that we look round and do our best to find a comfy place to eat. I'm ready for a meal." "Me, too," said Clowny. "Come, let's go. I'd like two sandwiches, or so. You know, when you have had enough, how good it makes you feel."

They shortly found a small cafe and then the bunch heard Scouty say, "Well, look who's going to wait on us. A Scooty trim and neat. They found a table. Then the pup, dressed in an apron, walked right up. The Tynmites smiled and Scouty said, "What will you have to eat?"

A Bystander In Washington

By HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—If the eighth congressional district of Michigan, traditionally republican, had not done such a flip-flop on election day there might be a different feeling in Washington political circles at the moment.

The death of Representative Wurzbach of Texas—the Lone Star State's only republican in congress and the third republican to be sent from Texas since it was admitted to the union—would have caused a flurry of activity.

Governor Sterling of Texas, nationally speaking, might have found himself in a position of power. Conceivably he might have had the final say as to who would organize the house of representatives in the coming congress.

But with the eighth Michigan doing an about face and sending a democrat down to make the house numerically safe, at the present at least, for the democrats, there was no need for great haste.

Democrats Confident
In fact, democratic leaders feel that they are in a rather comfortable position. They are confident that their Governor Sterling does call an election to name Wurzbach's successor it will be a democrat who will win.

Some who profess to know Texas politics say that no one but Harry Wurzbach could be sent to congress from that district. It was his personal popularity that had kept him in since 1921, and not because his district was republican, they say.

In fact there is speculation in the capital whether the republicans can put up a man who will give a democrat anything like a close race for the Wurzbach seat. Some go so far as to say that it will take a first rate vote getter to marshal enough strength even to make it competition for a democrat.

The chief concern of the democrats seems to be whether a man can be elected in time to take his seat for the organization roll call. They're not worrying much about anything else.

No Time To Lose
The statement of Representative Snell of New York that the republicans are not going to give up "because the Lord has taken some of our members" will be an added incentive for the democrats to try to get the Texas seat filled as quickly as possible.

Already members of the Texas delegation are urging Governor Sterling to proceed in calling an election to settle the matter.

They can't afford to take any chances. Sickiness of members for additional terms might be the controlling element in organizing on December 7. There have been three deaths in the last three weeks, and the organization of the house is less than a month away.

Neither party can afford to overlook a single thing.

REVEAL SECRET PACT

On Nov. 28, 1917, the text of an alleged secret treaty between France, Great Britain, Russia and Italy was given out at Petrograd.

The agreement, sanctioned by the annexation by Italy of certain territory in return for entering the Entente Alliance.

The agreement also engaged to brand as inadmissible the intervention of Pope Benedict with a view to stopping the war.

The document was said to have been signed in London April 26, 1915, by Sir Edward (later Viscount) Grey, former foreign secretary; Paul Cambon, French ambassador to Great Britain; and Count Benckendorff, Russian ambassador to Great Britain.

It was also said to contain a memorandum from the Italian ambassador at London to the Foreign Office, and the Allied ambassadors.

According to the Bolshevik revolutionaries Italy was to have the assistance of the French and British naval forces until the Austrian navy was destroyed.

After peace Italy was to receive Trent, southern Tyrol to the Brenner Pass, Trieste, Istria, and Dalmatia, with additional geographical boundaries outlined in great detail.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES

New York—Jan Smeterlin, New York pianist, met the English girl he was to marry at a house party in Austria.

The Polish artist decided, after 24 hours, that he was madly in love with her. The next time they met, in London, they were made one, as the saying goes.

Smeterlin had no top hat and he was determined not to get married without one. He went to a shop which rented clothing to thespians and got one for five shillings a day.

The wedding was on a Saturday. Rather than keep that hat over the week-end and be assessed more for it, he put his bride into a cab immediately after the ceremony and the two of them went to the shop to return the headgear.

Smeterlin laughs at life, whatever it offers. "It is too short to get sentimental over it," he says.

Henry M. Neely, a master of ceremonies, spent every winter for four years cruising to far corners of the earth as a wireless operator. Each spring he would quit the expedition ships upon their return, board his own boat and spend the warm months cruising and writing stories.

In addition to writing fiction and features for a number of magazines, Neely is a former newspaper publisher, musician and dramatic critic.

His last expedition was eight months in the Antarctic aboard the Norwegian whaler, Bomhay. The ship was anchored for four months at Deception Island.

Neely says the eight months' hunt netted 2,200 whales which sold for $1,000,000 in Liverpool. "The taste and smell of whale was in everything we ate aboard ship," he says. "The boat became covered inside and out with a thick coating of whale grease."

There is an age-old belief that seafaring folk can't go in much for agriculture, but husbandry of a sort is another hobby of Neely's. He once made a scientific investigation of farm conditions in the Midwest for a journal. Furthermore, he has a farm at Beverly, N. J., where he specializes in perennial flowers and fruit.

Trumpeter Triumphs
Jesse Lasky and B. A. Rolfe claim that they were the first vaudeville producing team to take the old stereotyped dance and song turns and clothe them in silks and satins and bathe them with alluringly colored lights.

They were young fellows then, dead set upon doing something revolutionary in "vaudeville."

When the pair broke into pictures, Rolfe's enthusiasm for them perhaps was greater than his partner's. They split their business interests amicably, because Rolfe wanted to produce in the east while Lasky thought the west coast was better for film making.

Rolfe's early successes laid a good part of the foundation for one of the biggest producing companies of today, but with high finance began to invade the picture field he stepped out.

He had begun his musical career at the age of 11; a boy prodigy totting a trumpet in Europe. So he turned again to music and seems to have got along pretty well.

Make Study Of Child Who Talks A Lot

BY ANGELO PATRI

"I wish I knew a way to make Jimmie hold his tongue."

"O, all children jabber a bit. Let him alone. Don't hear him."

"That's all right for you. You don't have to hear him and I do. It isn't just his incessant talking. That's bad enough. Add to that the embarrassment of having him say anything that comes into his head to anyone who happens to be within hearing and you'd better about him too. He pours out everything that he thinks about just raw as it came to him."

There are children who do that and they are a source of worry to teachers and parents. It is as though the streams of consciousness poured out of their mouth. The lady's term, "raw," just as it came to him," suits it precisely. Had the child held the thought an instant, turned it over, merged it with the accumulation of experience, it would have come through in different quality and form, or stayed in the silence.

Every idea in consciousness tends to express itself through one or more of the motor areas. That is today as ever it was. When a child thinks of something his body sets into motion in some of its parts, or in all of them. If he thinks "throw a stone," his arm throws the stone, although dreaming in his chair by your side. If the silent expression of movement is strong enough, I believe that the child is content with that for the time and there is no outward sign of the thought. But if his arm does not throw that stone, if the part of the body that is engaged in the proper motions when ordered to perform does not perform, some other part of the body must carry the burden and express the idea that troubled the mind. The loose-tongued child expresses these wayward thoughts by way of his tongue. If we can get him to use his arms or his legs for their expression he will talk less and do more. Then the question comes, How?

Steady the loose-tongued child. What is he talking about? Everything in general, nothing in particular. Examine him, test his diet, his toilet, and his sense powers—vision, hearing, taste, smell and touch. Go over his habits for any weaknesses that might be strengthened. Then find some pleasant activity for him. Train him to use his hands. One good teacher I know has skeins of yarn and when a child who talks too much enters her room to weave she gives him a skein of yarn to wind a ball of yarn keeps him busy so busy that there isn't enough energy left for talk. Once in a while she gets one who talks and winds at the same time but after he has wound a few balls he stops talking.

Teach the loose-tongued child to work. Give him plenty to do. When he starts yawning listen for a minute and then find a plausible errand on a handy little job that will direct his energy. These children are usually the sort who have soft baby hands. They dislike hard work because it is hard for them. It is far easier for them to talk. Train the flabby hands and the loose tongue will cease to waggle. At least it won't waggle so much.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Suggestion

The thought of what should we get Mother and Dad for Christmas has no doubt entered into the minds of many, but are at a loss as to what it might be.

TEETH and Your Health

This is the seventh of a series of articles published by the Ontonagon Dental Society. Readers are invited to send in their questions. They will be answered by qualified experts of the Dental Society.

YOUR child has come running to you one day—suffering pain—and has pulled aside his lip to let you see an angry lump on his little jaw. Since it was just as sore as a boil to touch, you called it a "gum-boil."

Possibly the child had not complained of any soreness, but one day while scrubbing his teeth, you noticed this lump with a little opening in the center, reminding you of a miniature volcano. From the "crater" was running a thick yellowish substance which you knew to be pus.

Now, what had caused this? Just one thing—a dead pulp.

Nor do you have far to seek for the offender, since usually you will find that the tooth just over this sore is badly decayed or broken down with perhaps just the stump remaining.

Then what should be done? For, of course, this condition should receive prompt treatment.

Should the tooth be not too badly decayed, your dentist may think it wise to try to save it; but more often, it should be extracted after the inflammation has somewhat subsided.

Following this treatment, the gum heals over and you congratulate yourself that no harm has been done.

But consider: already serious disturbances may have resulted, in the disease process the permanent tooth germ beneath may have been destroyed, to say nothing of the train of evils from the premature extraction of the offending tooth; and from the drainage of the pus into the system during the progress of the disease.

How much better if the tooth had received attention during the early stages of tooth decay.

Degree Is Conferred By Lodge

THE Royal Purple degree was conferred on four candidates at the meeting of Appleton Encampment, order of Odd Fellows, Friday night at Odd Fellow hall. The Green Bay team put on the work. Fifty-five members were present. A lunch was served after the ceremonies.

The Second Degree of the Mooseheart Legion will hold a frolic at Moose hall, Kaukauna, at 1:30 Sunday afternoon. Nomination and election of officers will take place and class initiation will be held.

A banquet will be served at 6 o'clock under the direction of women of the Kaukauna chapter, and there will be special entertainment in the evening.

Eleven candidates were voted on at the special meeting of Fraternal Order of Eagles Friday night at Eagle hall. Arrangements were made for a class initiation at the meeting next Wednesday night. Officers will be in charge.

MAESCH OPENS NEW SERIES OF ORGAN RECITALS

Complete mastery of the organ was apparent Friday afternoon in the organ recital given by LaVahn K. Maesch, A. A. G. O. at the Congregational church. The recital was the first of a series of vesper organ programs to be given by Mr. Maesch this winter.

The program, which was a well-balanced array of brilliant and meditative music, closed with the inspiring "American Hymns," by Dr. Van, organist at St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York. In the "Rhapsody," built on a number of familiar American tunes, were strains of "O Maryland, My Maryland," "Deep River," "Yankee Doodle," the "Star Spangled Banner" and other American songs.

Mr. Maesch, who is a member of the Lawrence Conservatory of Music faculty and organist at the Congregational church, gave artistic interpretations of the light and dainty "Cavatone" by Wesley, the brilliant "Song of Gratitude" by Cole and "Up the Saguway" by Russell, and the meditative "Dream Mood" by Foster-Nevin. A particularly appealing number was the quiet and mournful "Prelude and Fugue in F Minor" by Marcel Dupre, under whom Mr. Maesch studied while in Paris. Dupre is the first musician in history to have given the complete organ works of Bach from memory.

Mr. Maesch will present his second vesper recital at 4:30 Friday afternoon.

DEBATE PLANNED ON PROHIBITION

FOOT HEALTH

By GEORGE C. DAME

If you have foot troubles, don't put all the blame on your shoes if they hurt you, or if they quickly lose their shape. No shoes can long withstand the unnatural strains that structural weaknesses of the foot put upon them.

Weak feet, for instance—a condition in which the muscles of the feet are relaxed and the ligaments are not able to hold the feet in their properly formed position—shows itself often in the flattening of the shoe shank. And because it is the real cause of weak ankles, it is also the cause of "wobbling," which makes the heels of the shoes run over and the counters bulge.

Excessive perspiration, which is a symptom of structural weakness in the foot, rots the lining of the shoes and causes the leather to crack and break.

Shoes cannot be adjusted to the feet—at best they can be fitted as a covering and protection to the feet and this fact should be borne in mind when buying shoes. When there is arch or ankle weakness, proper and careful bandaging by your Doctor or feet padding by your shoe man is recommended.

Mr. Dame will be glad to help with your foot problems, if you will write, phone, or see him at DAME'S BOOT SHOP, Appleton.

When the weak foot condition has been permitted to develop into flat feet, the strain on the shoe is much greater. The shank of the shoe is often entirely broken down, the leather rips where it is attached to the sole and where the vamp is sewed to the upper. This is 203 W. College Ave.

NEENAH PAYS $68,700 IN COUNTY TAXES

Neenah—Neenah's share of county taxes is $68,700.59, according to a report tabulated by Walter Loehning. The total is divided into eight departments, including state special charges of $1,000; county tax, $42,313.74; county school tax, $11,377.54; bridge tax, $2,630.03; special road benefits, $200; resident poor, $1,217.55; indigent tuberculosis, $3,543.10; old age pension, $905.35.

The city will not have to pay state taxes this year. Last year's state and county taxes paid by the city amounted to $107,453.47.

An effort will be made to lower the rate to $25 a thousand this year.

Home, Tax Claim All That Remains Of Big Fortune

BY WILLIAM VOIGT, JR.

Ponca City, Okla. —(AP)—A few years ago an oil millionaire—now a man facing comparative want.

Such is the case of E. W. Marland, founder of the Marland oil company only six years ago valued at more than $85,000,000.

Encompassed by all the visible symbols of wealth and beholding from his windows a mighty industrial project which he fathered, Marland, according to published reports, has only his palatial home and an income tax refund claim left.

The home he built three years ago at a cost of a million dollars.

The tax refund claim may bring him nothing. Should it be allowed it might return to him $1,000,000 of the fortune he once possessed.

Across the prairie from his mansion, Marland can view the broad acres of the industrial holdings he once controlled. Down a carefully landscaped avenue he can see the heroic figure of the "Pioneer Woman," the statue which he gave to Oklahoma in March, 1920. It cost him $100,000.

Changes Hands

All that is left of Marland's once numerous millions has passed into the hands of William H. MacFadden, formerly an employee of the oil man, in return for assuming obligations totaling $250,000.

Marland, now 57, was a brilliant student in youth and obtained a law degree at 19. Two years of law in his native state of Pennsylvania were followed by 15 years as an oil man there.

He came to Oklahoma in 1912 and in 14 years had built from virtually the ground up one of the southwest's largest fortunes and controlled a vast business empire.

In 1920 by obtaining the mineral concession to a 3,000,000-acre tract in Sonora, Mexico, he turned one of the largest oil deals in the annals of the industry. His projects expanded and in 1928 he had holdings in Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, California, Louisiana, Kansas, Colorado, Canada, Mexico and England.

The next year saw the beginning of the decline. The Marland oil financial report showed a deficit of more than $7,693,000, and in October, 1929, Marland retired from active control of the company.

It was prior to this unexpected turn of events that Marland and Miss Lydia Miller Roberts, his first wife's niece and his ward, were married. The first Mrs. Marland, an invalid, had died in June, 1926.

Whether Marland will try to "beat back" his former place in the world of commerce is uncertain. It is hinted he may attempt to dispose of the home and, eventually, establishing his claim against the government, retire from active acquisition of wealth to live on the remains of his once broad holdings.

U. S. GIRL DESERTS COUNTRY TO FOLLOW GANDHI'S TEACHING

Nilla Cram Cook Says Life in America Is False and Illusory

Benares, India —(AP)—An American girl, Nilla Cram Cook, is contending with Madeline Slade, English woman, in her devotion to Mahatma Gandhi and his doctrines of non-violence, self-denial and prayer.

She is the daughter of George Cram Cook, American author.

For nearly seven years Miss Slade, 37-year-old daughter of a former rear admiral in the British navy, has been the only white woman follower of the Mahatma. Now her position is challenged by Miss Cook, who on her twenty-second birthday intends to become a Hindu.

The American girl in embracing the Hindu religion will follow the example of the former Nancy Miller of Seattle who when she married the Maharajah of Indore accepted her husband's faith.

Join Model Colony

Mrs. Cook, a young matron of striking beauty, announced a short time ago that she had taken steps to join Gandhi's "Ashram," or model colony, at Ahmedabad, where all the ascetic teachings of India's apostle of peace are practiced.

She now announces that on December 21, when she will be 22, she will immerse herself in the waters of the Ganges and be named as an adherent of the Hindu religion.

She has chosen that date for her conversion, she says, because the stars, which have a special significance for her, are in unity on that day.

Miss Cook is living on a houseboat on Dal Lake, in the beautiful Kashmir valley of northern India.

Her only companion is her little son. Her husband, a young Greek of aristocratic birth, lives in Athens, but Miss Cook prefers to live apart from him and go under her maiden name.

She says the life lived by Americans today is a false and illusory one, providing fleeting pleasures, but yielding nothing in spiritual beauty and durable happiness.

"I hope to meet the master (Gandhi) in Benares," says Miss Cook, "and after my conversion I shall prepare myself by special prayers, fasting and meditation to enter the Mahatma's 'Ashram.' I shall then be better fit to serve the greatest spiritual figure in the world today."

Son Gets Property

"I have already given up all my money and ceded my property to my 3-year-old son, and have renounced all the pleasures of this mundane existence. I shall also take a vow of chastity, as required by Mr. Gandhi of all those who join his 'Ashram.'"

"Ever since I began studying the philosophies and religions of India in Greece, I have longed for reformation from the bondage of earthly existence. I see my salvation in the teachings of Mahatma Gandhi, whom I regard as the prototype of Christ."

Miss Cook dresses in flowing Greek classical robes and never wears shoes, stockings, or a hat. Like Gandhi she lives on cereals and goat's milk.

She has attracted much attention in India because of her odd attire and her beauty.

COACH CUTS CAGING SQUAD TO 32 PLAYERS

Menasha—The first cut in the Menasha high school varsity cage squad, decreasing the number of candidates from 47 to 32, has been made by Coach Nathan Calder.

About 10 additional players will be dropped from the first squad late next week, Calder announced.

SONNENBERG DRUGS HOLD LEAGUE LEAD

Menasha—Romping to a 37 to 15 victory over the All Stars, the Sonnenberg drugs retained first position in Polish Falcon basketball league standings at Falcon hall Friday evening. Wallie Green, former St. Mary high school star, led Sonnenberg scoring with nine field goals and one free toss for a total of 19 points.

The Falcon quint took a 33 to 44 drubbing from the Aces in the second game of the evening. Both teams were strong offensively and the count was closely contested.

ST. MARY CAGERS DRILL FOR GAME AT OAKFIELD

Menasha—The St. Mary high school basketball team, drilling under the direction of Coach Clifford Dilts, is preparing for its opening game against the Oakfield quintet at Oakfield Wednesday evening.

The varsity squad has been reduced to 12 players, 10 of whom are sophomores, and although the battle for first string positions is still in progress, the first team is taking shape. Reschli is the likely choice for the center position. Coopman will appear as one of the forwards, while Stip and Resch are working regularly at guards. The first conference game will be played against Lourdes of Marinette at Menasha Jan. 8.

MENASHA PERSONALS

Menasha—Dr. and Mrs. F. Royer of Green Bay and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Erickson of Racine returned to their homes Friday after a two-day visit with Mr. and Mrs. Lee Royer of this city.

PROMISES TO QUIT DRINKING; MAN GETS OFF WITH $25 FINE

Neenah—A promise to quit drinking and to stay away from dance halls saved George Ackerman, Neenah, from being punished to the full extent of the state law by Municipal Judge Spengler Friday, when the defendant pleaded guilty of being drunk in a town of Menasha dance place.

Ackerman was released from jail Oct. 8, after serving a sentence for resisting an officer in a brawl in the same dance hall, and the judge stated circumstances in the case might have warranted a charge that Ackerman resisted Fred Fetters, who arrested him Thursday evening.

The court said, however, that in preference to pleading Ackerman's plea again for a long period, he would give him a chance to reform, and assessed a fine of $25 and costs or 30 days in jail.

The Menasha squad has added Lenny Neubauer and H. Jersid of Neenah to its lineup and probably will start Sinske, Neubauer, Naldolney and Beech in the backfield. A number of Menasha fans are expected to accompany the team to Appleton.

ACCIDENT VICTIM IN SERIOUS CONDITION

Menasha—The condition of Joseph Brigravatz, 609 Milwaukee-st, injured in an accident here Thursday afternoon, was still considered serious shortly before noon Saturday, according to reports from Theda Clark hospital. Brigravatz suffered a fractured skull and other injuries late Thursday afternoon when he struck the side of a moving automobile while walking across Racine-st.

Menasha—No contagious or mild communicable diseases have been reported in Menasha during the past week, according to Dr. W. P. McGrath, city physician. A single case of small pox represents the only contagion recorded in the city for more than two months and general health conditions are good.

MANY BILLS TO BE INTRODUCED BY SCHNEIDER

Ninth District Congressman Wants $100,000 Fish Station in Door-co

BY RUBY A. BLACK Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—One immigration bill, a measure for the hospitalization of any one who contracted tuberculosis in the armed forces of the United States, a bill to establish a $100,000 fish cultural station in Door-co, two Indian bills, and one private bill will be re-introduced by Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton as soon as Congress convenes.

All these measures were before the last Congress and some nearly reached passage, while there was no action on others. He will also introduce some new measures now being drafted.

His immigration bill would permit immigrants who reached this country prior to the passage of the 1924 restrictive immigration law and who have no evidence of legal entry to obtain certificates showing their right to be in this country. This is designed to take care of those who entered between June 2, 1921 and July 1, 1924, and who are of good moral character and not subject to deportation.

The hospitalization measure would permit any person who contracted tuberculosis in the army, navy, or marine corps to be admitted to government tuberculosis hospital whether or not he was honorably discharged. This measure has been before Congress since 1927, the congressman's attention having been called to the situation by the case of Carl O. Bujack of Green Bay.

Served in Navy

Bujack served honorably in the navy through several enlistments, and was honorably discharged from a ship, but was dishonorably discharged from his last enlistment while suffering from tuberculosis.

He is now living on the Pacific Coast in very poor health and is denied hospitalization by the government.

The fish cultural station, for the purpose of propagating fish natural to the waters of the Great Lakes, would be somewhere in the town of Bailey Harbor, under the Schneider bill.

Encouraged by the recommendation of the board of Indian commissioners that a tuberculosis hospital be established in central Wisconsin for Indians, Rep. Schneider will re-introduce his bill for a $125,000 Indian hospital in Forest county.

He will also introduce again the bill providing for an 8-hour day for lumber operations on the Menominee Indian reservation, a measure which is opposed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

The bill for the relief of Edward Christianson of Sturgeon Bay, which was favorably reported by the Committee on Claims last February, will be re-introduced. Christianson contracted a strange skin disease because of drinking impure water while working on the Peshtigo Lightship in December, 1919. This has caused numerous operations, almost continuous pain, and permanent damage. The bill would permit him to get compensation under the general federal employees' compensation law.

Introduce Another

Rep. Schneider will probably introduce later a measure similar to one he had before the last Congress to compensate the public schools at Lacna, Wabeno, and Stone Lake for teaching Indian children, unless the Indian service arrangements for the compensation without legislation.

He will not reintroduce his measure for the establishment of a national park on the six eastern townships of the Menominee Indian reservation unless the conditions seem to him to make it necessary.

He is waiting to see if the Indian service will arrange for the care of homeless and destitute Chippewa Indians in Forest, Langlade, and Oneida counties before again introducing the measure which he had

DISCUSS TAX PLANS AS DEFICIT GROWS

Washington—(AP)—The latest growth report on the federal deficit has spurred everybody from the White House to congress into figuring new ways of raising money.

The total for the current fiscal year is pushing for the billion dollar mark, standing now at $13,377,093.

While President Hoover is completing the recommendations to congress, which will go up on Dec. 9, senators and representatives are putting their own views on record.

Representative Bacharach of New Jersey, Republican leader in the ways and means committee, said in a radio speech last night he favored higher rates on large individual incomes and estates, plus a gift tax and sales taxes on non-essentials.

Chairman Smoot of the senate finance committee favors a small sales tax absorbed by the seller, but concedes possibility of higher rates on big incomes. The Democrats are not giving definite plans yet.

EXPECT GREATER DEVELOPMENTS IN 1932 TELEVISION

Laboratories Report New Creation Will Soon Be Ready for Market

BY C. E. BUTTERFIELD New York—(AP)—Since New York's radio show, television in the east has been more or less marking time.

The reason for this can be explained in several ways, one of which has to do with the fact that the several laboratories which had announced they would soon be ready with their screen televisions have found that it has taken more time than at first thought to get ready for the market.

Another factor seems to be the decision of the radio industry as a whole that it should continue to concentrate on sound broadcast sets, at least for the present season. What next year will bring no one can publicly foretell yet.

Experiments Go On

Meanwhile experimental picture broadcasting is being carried along on about the same schedule as the past several months, with the transmitters on the Atlantic seaboard sticking to the policy of sending out images of 50 lines, 20 pictures per second.

Occasionally is heard some discussion about the possibility of shifting ultimately to the ultra short waves for the handling of television, but outside of several experiments not much progress along that line has been reported.

However, even if there is a decision to so shift, it is the plan of most experimenters to continue the transmissions on the 100 and 150 meter channels for some time to come, running short and ultra short wave pictures simultaneously.

Just how fast television will take hold in public interest has been one thing that has caused considerable worry on the part of its enthusiastic backers.

Many of them feel that it will step along at a faster pace than did sound broadcasting, while others think that due to the problems that no doubt will spring up after its formal introduction it will feel its way more carefully.

First Television Year

There seems to be a general feeling within the radio industry that too much attention should not be paid to experimental television. This is based on the tenet that the laboratories need just a little more time to further their own work.

While this has been really the first television year and no doubt will be so looked upon by radio historians, the consensus appears to be that avid concentration on television manufacture will not come until the turn of the year, if it before the last Congress. The service has promised to care for these Indians, and has helped a few as a result of the agitation over his bill.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir suddenly is surrounded by attention, after unsuccessful seasons in New York society. She returns from Paris, preceded by rumors of exciting engagements abroad. The rumors are groundless, but Venice has initiated them and now encourages them. She is trying to capture Rollo Wainwright, who formerly ignored her.

minutes of three different invitations that he had refused for the same evening.

The contract was split. Rollo played a brilliant game and Venice marvelled how card sense had nothing whatsoever to do with the depth of one's intellect.

Lola and Jerry left comparatively early.

"Alone at last," sighed Roland Wainwright, leaning towards the blaze that crackled cheerily in the wide fireplace.

"No, I'm here," smiled Venice. She sat at quite a distance from him in a large chair and could not help admiring the glow from the flames in his gay blue eyes and the way it turned his yellow chest to gold.

"I wish you wouldn't always be so clever with me, Venice."

"I'm not, really. You misinterpret my simple words. Do you really want to know exactly what I'm like, Rollo?"

She would relish trying to explain honestly. It would be fun to tell him of her shyness, her lack of any social garnishing.

"I certainly would."

"I'm really a very diffident person. I'm not a good conversationalist. I like books and pictures and I love to talk about life and death and marriage in the abstract - all the things one wonders about."

"Well, why don't you then?"

"Very few people would want to listen to me."

"Thank God for that."

"Exactly."

There was a pause.

"You don't think much of me, do you, Venice?" This doubt was what caught and held his interest in her. Every one else seemed to think so very much of him that it was a break in the monotony of his contracts.

"Why should I, Rollo? You think too much of yourself to leave any one very much to work on."

"You mean I'm conceited?"

"Did I imply that?" She wanted to laugh. It was so patent that he could not believe his ears.

"I suppose you didn't. I shouldn't be so super-sensitive."

"No," said Venice.

"I don't know where I'm at with you, Venice. You seem so quiet simple and I, but no noheman kills himself for a quiet simple girl."

"Perhaps it was his debts," She smiled.

There was a pause. "Do you remember that dinner at the Philip Mannings' when you carefully ignored me and then kissed me so imperceptibly, Rollo?"

"No. When was that? As a matter of fact I don't recollect exactly when it was my first meal. He was sincere. Even his insolence towards her had made no impression on him. She was sure he could not even recall when they had been introduced. It was the real Venice he had hurt, a manufactured Venice that he favoured. She could see herself now left standing alone with that queer glass in one hand while he hurried across the foyer to that other girl hidden away somewhere.

"I don't remember either," she said easily.

He suddenly got to his feet and came to put his hands on her shoulders.

"I love you, Venice."

She was embarrassed and looked away although she did not move.

"Will you marry me?" he asked softly.

Venice's answer does not come quickly, tomorrow. She plans a way to get revenge for the insult Rollo once gave her.

COP IN TAXI SUSPENDED

Youngstown, O. - Dan Popovich and Edwin A. Jones, policeman, were assigned to drive the police radio cruiser about town. Popovich remembered that he was supposed to attend a lodge meeting. Arranging a meeting place with Jones, Popovich took a taxi to the lodge meeting. Jones, weary, decided to nap before going to the meeting place. Popovich failed to find Jones at the agreed-upon point and frantic, drove around town in the taxi in search of Jones. Police Captain Dominic Thompson saw him. Now Popovich and Jones are under suspension and the former, being a cadet on a year's trial, may be suspended from the force.

Rumor Hans Ahl, Harold Cotter Rematched For Charity Fight

RASMUSSEN AND DRAKE MAY MEET IN SEMI

Date of Show Changed from Thursday, Dec. 10 to Tuesday, Dec. 8

ONEY Johnston post's amateur fight card for charity will be staged at Armory G, Tuesday evening, Dec. 8 it was announced today. The original date for the card was Dec. 10 but because another group has the armory for that night the legion has been forced to advance it's show.

Proceeds from the fight over expenses, will be given to Appleton charities the post voted at a meeting several weeks ago.

Although definite announcement has not been made as to fighters on the coming program, rumor has it that Hans Ahl of Oshkosh and Harold Cotter of Kaukauna again will match blows in the windup. That being the case the armory should be packed.

A month or more ago the two boys met here and staged one of the greatest scraps this season, that is, one of the greatest fights as far as the winning blow and sudden ending were concerned.

The two boys got into the ring and eased along through the first round with Cotter having a slight edge. In the second frame the veteran Cotter still was on top as far as scoring was concerned and the spectators were all ready to see him take the third frame too as the going sent the boys on their way.

But hardly had the echo of the bell died away when Ahl suddenly stepped in and straightened Cotter with a short left to the jaw and then smacked him cold with a terrific over hand right. It was one of the most spectacular knockouts ever seen at the armory. More than one fan will jump at the opportunity to see the boys show again—if they have been cured.

Another fight that is expected to stir popular imagination will show Hank Rasmussen of Appleton and Racine and Lyle Drake of Waupaca. The boys also have appeared before local fans and staged a merry cutting match until Rasmussen stopped a solar plexus blow and the referee stopped the fight and gave Drake the nod. Another brawl between the two is certain to please the fight public.

'CAT GRIDDERS HURT AS ELEVATOR DROPS

Ten Members of Team Plunge Five Floors; Bruised, Shaken

Chicago—(P)—Ten members of the Northwestern football squad were nursing mild bruises and shaky nerves today as they went out to meet Purdue in the final game of the season.

The bruises and shaky nerves were caused by an unpleasant experience last night when they dropped five floors in a hotel elevator. The players, George Porter, regular quarterback; Ken Meaner, regular half-back; Harold Weldon, regular center; Luke Foster and Roy Auguston, reserve backs; Paul Engelbert, Paul McDonald and Chester Sutton, reserve linemen, and Art Jens and Val Valentine, reserve ends, were on their way to a theater after dinner. The elevator started to drop and the operator employed as safety device, which instead of stopping the car at the floor below, merely retarded its progress downward.

The elevator landed in the basement and the iron grillwork in the top fell, bumping several men on the head. Porter suffered a leg bruise, but all, according to Coach Dick Hanley, would be ready to play.

Chaff 'n Chatter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

WENT out to Lawrence college gymnasium yesterday afternoon and parked on one of Art Denney's best chairs until it was time to start down town for a visit to the usual eating haunt.

But while we sat around we learned a lot of things that will make news stories later, perhaps, that are just a little light now and don't fit in anywhere except in the yarn column.

Big Bill Smith, "Tiger Bill," they called him back in the days when Lawrence was popping up on everything in the football world, was looking over the plant during the P. M. With him was his Missus. They are visiting at New London over the holidays and came over here to renew acquaintances.

Bill as you probably know is football coach at West High, Milwaukee. And while here he chatted with a couple youngsters on the fresh squad who performed on the west team before coming to Lawrence this fall.

Found Percy Clapp down in one of the hand ball courts doing his best to take off anything that might look like a bulging waist line. Later in the afternoon we caught him acting as center out on the football field while Gili Lemke tried a few punts. This ideal weather almost makes the gridders wish the season wasn't over.

And here's a deep secret: While we watched Percy heaving the ball from pivot position, he shoved one away over Lemke's head. That's passed along for next year's centers so they don't feel so bad when they let one slip in some important game.

And speaking of football, The Lawrence grid schedule for next fall will be announced soon, I think. Director of Athletics A. C. Denney has the card almost fixed up and as soon as he gets approval of one more date he'll be ready to let you in on it.

The Vikes as usual will play all the state schools so there's nothing sensational in the word.

Coach Denney now is most interested in basketball and he invited us to stick around a little while and give the varsity squad the once over as it indulged in its first scrimmage with the yearlings. So we did.

The varsity has progressed to the point where, unless Art changed his mind last night, the boys have learned their fundamentals and a good scoring plays pretty well. They haven't any out of bounds plays just yet and a couple other important little details but they'll get them next week.

The team boasts a flock of big fellows as we said earlier in the season. They don't move with the confidence of last year's squad but handled the ball well and there are a couple boys who certainly are fine shots. One or two chaps will show some money in the hands of the leather too, this season. Boy, if that aggregation ever starts clicking as it can, Mr. Hinkley and Mr. Vandermaulen from Carroll, are going to be in for a couple tough evenings.

Art will trot his proteges out before the home guard the night of Dec. 11 when he plays St. Norbert five here. Then we'll all know whether the boys will get anywhere this year. On Dec. 17 the team goes to Milwaukee for one of its annual thrills with Bill Chandler's Marquette team. Golly, it would be great if the gang could knock off the Avalanche this winter.

Heard that rolling blocks and several other grid antics were very much in evidence in that pro game at Neenah the other night. The only Nelson and the air plane spin, "I said, Zeke Remmel of the Neenah team scored heaviest. He got one field goal, one free throw and two stitches—in his lip.

Whether Wisconsin will retain Glenn Thistlethwaite as grid coach next year seems to be the general subject of conversation here's a copyright comment from the pen of Francis J. Powers, Consolidated Press Sports writer:

"Wisconsin's record for the 1931 season is not so bad. The Badgers won three and lost two conference games; were tied by Auburn and beaten by Pennsylvania. Coaches have survived after worse seasons than that, but Wisconsin followers do not believe Thistlethwaite has seen the results possible with the material at his disposal.

"One critic writing of Wisconsin said: 'Wisconsin this year is a typical Badger team. One of those teams that seems to have everything the first couple of games of the season and then suddenly explodes with a loud pop. The team is big, slow and unimaginative. It had a fair line and a back field that might have been a real factor except for that intangible element that has kept Wisconsin from winning a Big Ten title for 20 years. Some ingrained streak of dullness in the Badger mental attitude explains as well as anything what Wisconsin lacks'."

Baylor and Rice were rivals in a Southwest conference clash this year, but the championship situation in Georgia Tech came together in perhaps the toughest contest. The only other Southern conference test sent Duke against Washington and Lee.

Baylor and Rice were rivals in a Southwest conference clash this year, but the championship situation in Georgia Tech came together in perhaps the toughest contest. The only other Southern conference test sent Duke against Washington and Lee.

What's that—did we hear someone say the dullness is because there are too many reserved, unexcitable Germans on the squad?

NOTRE DAME TAKING ARMY SERIOUSLY

Cadets Always Have Proved Toughest Team When Battling Ramblers

New York—(P)—One long marching streak is being followed by Notre Dame's football team, the Ramblers, as they prepare to start another at the expense of an ancient rival, the Army, in the Yankee Stadium today.

On paper at least, the Ramblers looked to be at least two "touchdowns" better than Army but past performances never have played much of a part in the rivalry between these two schools.

Notre Dame's coach, Knute Anderson, put it:

"I'm taking no chances with this Army team. They have a habit of being just an ordinary football team until they play us and then they suddenly turn into world beaters. Look at the last two years. We've been plenty lucky to beat them, 7-6 and 10-0."

Most of the 50,000 spectators who made the stadium their mecca for the day expected the Ramblers to seek revenge on the Army for their defeat by Southern California last year. Certainly there has been indication of a shattered morale at South Bend.

Army, although beaten by Harvard and Pittsburgh and tied by Yale, was prepared to offer a rugged defense and perhaps flash an attack, running or aerial, that might lead to an upset victory.

Of the 17 games played between the two schools since 1923, Notre Dame has won 12 and Army four with one tie.

PRIMO FLATTENS CAMPOLO IN TWO ROUND BATTLE

Battle of Dreadnaughts Staged for Jewish Charity Benefit

BY HERBERT W. BARKER Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK—(P)—For Victorio Campolo the taste trail definitely seems to lead back to South America.

The six-foot seven-inch giant from Argentina landed less than two rounds against the not-so-tall but more ponderous Primo Carnera in Madison Square Garden last night.

One volley of lefts and rights sent him to the floor early in the second round and another finished him for the rest of the evening.

This ends Campolo's hopes of re-establishing his pugilistic reputation which suffered badly when the tall dancho took a bad beating from Tommy Loughran in ten rounds and was knocked out in seven by Ernie Schaaf. This new setback apparently will eliminate Campolo entirely from heavy weight consideration.

From at least one viewpoint it was quite a fight while it lasted. The 17,000 spectators perhaps never saw so fantastic a spectacle before.

There was the referee, Gunboat Smith, former heavyweight, standing himself, turned into a "midnight" by Campolo's six foot seven inches and Carnera's six foot six. Between them the huge rivals aggregated 491 pounds, Carnera scaling 266½ and Campolo 224½.

Takes Count Sitting Down As an exhibition of punching power on Carnera's part it was not so much for Campolo took the final count sitting down, solemnly announcing the victory and exhibiting not the slightest desire to leave a comfortable position for one perhaps not so comfortable.

The "dreadnaughts," as William Muldoon called them when he established a new fist division a few months ago, mixed it freely in the first round with no particular damage to either combatant. Resin dust rose in clouds as the gigantic warriors tramped around the ring. Campolo shot over his best punch, a right, time and again without drawing more than a raised eyebrow from Carnera.

The second round of the 15-round bout had barely opened when Carnera hammered home a half dozen short rights and lefts and Campolo went down. He was barely on his feet at ten, dazed but unmarked.

Primo unleashed another two-fisted attack to the head and the tall South American went down for keeps.

The show, with $15 top prices, was staged for the benefit of the Jewish charities.

Swartz is called again "the outstanding back" and Clarence Munn of Minnesota is classed as the lineman of the year.

Right halfback—Pinckert, Southern California. Fullback—Rentner, Northwestern.

Low Fonseca To Manage Chi Sox And Play First

NEW YORK—(P)—Low Fonseca, a two year managerial contract with the Chicago Americans and also a player contract for the season of 1932. The latter agreement does not affect the status of the two year contract, the existence of which has nothing to do with his right to appear on the field as an active player.

Baseball rules regarding contracts with managers are not generally well understood. Any club may make a contract with a man to act as manager, but that agreement does not permit him to become an active player, unless it is followed by a player's contract, which must be filed with the president of the league.

The fact that Fonseca has signed a two-year contract shows two things. First that the Chicago management has made up its mind that changing its management each season will not produce results. Second, that Fonseca has confidence in his own judgment and thinks he can work out the problem of getting Chicago up in the race, and staying in the first division if he is given half a year to attempt it.

The American league rules for the year 1932 are in effect and the Chicago club is anxious to establish itself as the western leader, believing that a strong team in Chicago will tend to bring back the old sectional fight which was so keen in the organization prior to the dismemberment of the 1919 Chicago "Black Sox" team.

Fonseca was outlined as a manager by the press. With a record of 100 wins and 100 losses, I know what you mean about the need for the proof of the text. I am certain that the Chicago team can play as spiritedly and as well in the season of 1932 as it did in the city series against the Cubs. If the American league season had been started after that series the White Sox would not have finished last in the race. Of that I am sure.

EXPENSE CUTTING HAS PAVED WAY TO BIGGER PROFITS

Babson Says Many Stocks Are Now Selling Below Their Net Quick Assets

BY ROGER W. BABSON
Babson Park, Mass. — The bright side of current earnings statements is the drastic reduction in operating expenses. This is more important to the business outlook than the gloomy picture of lowered sales. It means that as business starts up, even a little profit will show a proportionately larger gain. The one best medicine for business confidence will be a turn in the tide of profits. Then is when employers will take on more workers, will buy more materials, install new machinery, and generally expand their business. Hence, instead of being discouraged by the drastically lowered gross income in recently reported earnings, we should be encouraged by the proportionately large decreases in operating expenses. Business has been doing a thorough house-cleaning and is in a good position to profit from any moderate increase in sales or prices.

While earnings reports for the third quarter were very disappointing, with net income of industrial companies averaging around fifty-four per cent below last year, they are better in comparison than in the second quarter when the decline was fifty-seven per cent, and better than in the first quarter when the decline was fifty-eight per cent. The utilities have held up remarkably well, showing a drop in net of only seven per cent in the third quarter against an average decline of fifty-four per cent for all industrial companies. Railroads still hard hit with a drop of forty-eight per cent. The rails have been handicapped by inability to reduce wages in the face of a fifty per cent decrease in revenues. The recent rate increase should help the rails, but real recovery of income depends largely on how soon the inevitable wage reduction is accomplished.

Highly Liquid Position
Corporation managements have bent every effort toward getting their business in the strongest financial position possible. Net working capital of most of the big companies is larger now than it was last year in spite of the radical reduction in earnings. Cash holdings have been conserved and increased through drastic readjustments and economies. As a result the net quick assets behind many stocks are larger than ever, whereas their market prices are averaging twenty-seven per cent below last year, and those of 1929. Out of a list of two hundred representative industrial companies, sixty-two are selling below the actual value of their net quick assets. Some of the more speculative issues are selling at one-half to one-third of their equities in such assets. Inventories have been kept at rock-bottom levels so that cash and cash equivalent represents a much larger proportion of current assets than it did last year or the year before.

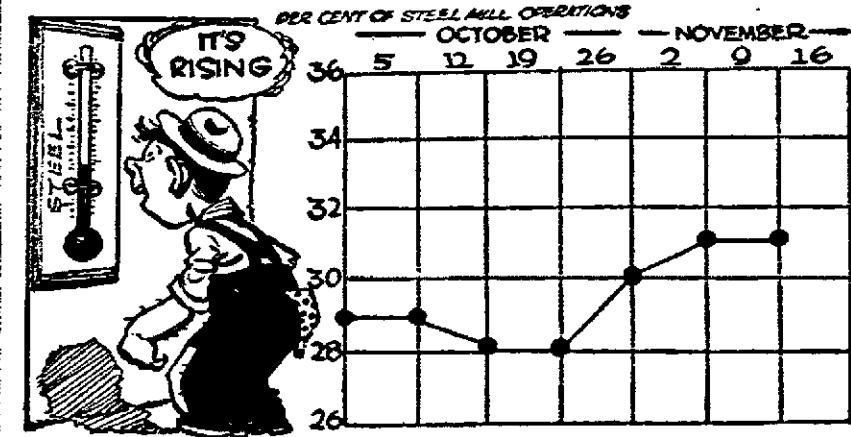

Obviously most good stocks have been pressed down to these very low levels by fear rather than by financial results. When stocks sell at prices which entirely ignore equity in the fixed properties, and in some cases sell below the actual quick assets, we may know that they are reflecting "fear psychology" rather than basic facts. While it would not be safe today to forecast that the bottom of the "crisis" shaped bear market has been completely worked out, it would be willing to state that we have seen the worst and are now coming out of the woods. We may have further severe reactions between now and the Presidential Election. The strong financial condition of most industries and utility companies, however, is one good reason why shrewd investors are picking up sound equities at these bargain levels.

Two-Sided Market
The bond market, next year is likely to be a two-sided affair. The undoubted trend toward credit expansion will tend to depress the gilt-edge issues like U. S. Government securities, which are selling on a basis of interest return rather than on earnings. However, many sound, medium-grade bonds should advance. Such bonds have been selling down because of fear about earnings. With improving business this fear will gradually diminish. Credit measures to check deflation and gradually free frozen assets will work to the benefit of such bonds while keeping down the price of gilt-edge issues. Later on, of course, if credit inflation goes far enough the whole bond market would suffer, but those issues that have suffered because of business fears, should show a distinct comeback as business sentiment becomes more optimistic.

Moreover, as the banks are relieved from the fear of public hoarding and currency "runaway" will come into the bond market with a large volume of funds now being held liquid. Hence, despite the outlook for firmer money rates and credit inflation, the law of supply and demand will again operate to strengthen prices of medium-grade bonds. However, it will be a long time before confidence is restored in European securities. The American people are pretty well fed up on Europe, and certainly are not in the mood to send good money after bad. Europe's troubles are by no means over. Further political and economic readjustments must take place abroad before foreign bonds will become attractive investments. The American investor is going to concentrate on home industries.

Must Have Faith
The successful investor during the next five years will be the one who has faith in fundamentals. The

Slight Improvement Is Seen In Steel Industry

Executive Vice President, Union Trust Co., Cleveland, O.
Sentiment appears to have improved in business and now observers are searching the industrial skies for some actual signs of gains in manufacturing activities. There is one index, more significant for general trade than all others, and that is steel mill activity. The reason for this is that steel is a universal metal of modern life being used in innumerable lines of industry.

Whatever is happening in the steel mills reflects conditions in many directions. Just now it appears that some improvement is taking place in steel. There has been no vigorous recovery, but an apparent halt in a long decline. This picture is found in the record of the magazine "Steel" which shows that steel mill operations dropped to the lowest point in 10 years in October, but that there has been some recovery since that time. The rate of operations was as low as 28 per cent of capacity in October, recovering to 31 per cent by the middle of November.

The great steel industry depends upon a vast number of industries for demand, but a few great consuming lines use about 60 pounds of each 100 pounds of finished steel produced each year. These include the railroads, automobiles, building and pipe.

The present prospects are for some degree of immediate improvement for motor car output, as producers soon make 1932 models for their dealers' showrooms throughout the country. The railroads must buy rails to maintain their tracks, and some large pipe line projects are reported in process. All these factors give promise that the steel industry has reached its lowest point and is on the way toward some improvement.

PIERRE'S SERVES MOTORISTS WITH EXPERT REPAIRS

New Equipment Installed in Shop at 544 N. Superior-st

For nine years, Pierre's, at 544 N. Superior-st., has served hundreds of customers. Each one has expected and received far better than ordinary service. At Pierre's, automobile radiators are repaired, auto bodies and fenders are straightened, bent and broken parts repaired and expert welding of every type is performed. This shop is owned and managed by John A. Pierre, who spent years learning his trade and in teaching it to students at Milwaukee vocational schools before coming to Appleton. Because his work is that of the experienced craftsman, it always satisfies. In all it dates back 15 years.

Buys New Equipment
Just three weeks ago, Mr. Pierre installed several hundred dollars worth of new equipment in his shop. This move not only means that work can be done more efficiently, but it actually lowers the cost.

"With this new equipment," explains Mr. Pierre, "I can do in a little more than a half hour what used to take me an hour and a half." As a result, the labor cost to customers is reduced with a resulting lower price for the finished work. In his work as a welder, Mr. Pierre has become familiar with many types of metal and innumerable objects, pieces and appliances which require welding when broken. His success has cut replacement costs in dozens of instances.

One of the specialties of the Pierre shop is the replacement of automobile door panels when these have been damaged beyond the point of satisfactory repair. Another is the repair of automobile tops. Still others are radiator repair, straightening of bumpers, fenders, frames and axles.

Pierre Should Examine Radiator
Motorists who have reason to believe that the radiators of their automobile have been leaking and are damaged in some way should drive into Pierre's.

Here radiators are inspected, repaired when necessary and put back on the car in perfect condition and guaranteed to give satisfactory service.

Straightened fenders and bodies always are, of course, touched up to blend with the rest of the car. Other minor painting is efficiently done.

Any radiator defects, Mr. Pierre points out, should be attended to now, with the approach of cold weather. The use of anti-freezes can prove unprofitably expensive if Pierre's radiator service can be had at any time by phoning 5799 or visiting the shop at 544 N. Superior-st.

BACK-SLIDER
Fort Worth, Tex.—Three years ago John W. Lott was converted and baptized by Rev. E. W. Nix. Now he is charged with swindling the minister after Rev. Nix without hesitation complied with Lott's request for indorsement of a check which the latter returned unpaid.

Law of Action and Reaction, shown by business statistics, shows that this area of depression is already sixty per cent completed. Business has been cleaning house; wages are being reduced; prices are at the lowest levels in twenty years; measures are under way to free frozen credits; corporations have effected drastic economies and conserved cash resources. There will be waves of disappointment and pessimism affecting stock and bond prices. However, the investor who is working on the Law of Action and Reaction will regard every major dip as a purchasing opportunity, and not a signal for frightened selling.

Business by the Babsonchart now registers 30 per cent below normal, or 10 per cent below a year ago. Copyright, 1931, Publishers Financial Bureau.

NEW EQUIPMENT IS INSTALLED BY RETSON, JIMOS

Shape, Size and Line of Old Hat Is Brought Up to Date by Them

They're making some important changes at the modern-minded firm of Retson & Jimos at 109 E. College-ave these days. This is the firm which for 16 years has attended to the re-beautifying of the shoes and hats of the Appleton area.

New equipment for the remodeling of hats is being installed. With this equipment, Retson & Jimos will be able to take a hat—apparently a hopelessly old one—and, by changing its shape, size and lines, bring it up to date. This service will be given free when a hat is cleaned and blocked.

Retson & Jimos suggest that you try this with one of your old hats. Take the oldest, widest-brimmed one of the bunch and bring it in. Come back for it later and you'll find it endowed with new youth and beauty. The brim has been cut down, the crown has been re-blocked into a new shape, a new band has been placed on it, dust and dirt has been removed from it.

Service Speeded Up
When you need your hat cleaned in a hurry you can bring it to Retson & Jimos and expect complete, expert service in less than a half hour. This unprecedented speed has been made possible by new equipment and new methods.

And if you're too busy to come in—just call 293 and the new Retson & Jimos free delivery service will call for and deliver your hat.

Because of the constant growth in business, Retson & Jimos have found it necessary to remodel part of their shop and add two new cases for hats. The rear of the store is being remodelled and new hat blocking equipment is being added. Another Retson & Jimos specialty is found in the firm's expert drying of shoes. Now shoes, in good condition but lacking in lustre, can be dyed to another attractive shade and new wear gotten out of them. Only the best dyes, properly used, are employed in giving new beauty of footwear.

All cleaners used by Retson & Jimos are prepared in the shop. Thus, only the purest products, absolutely safe for use on fine apparel, are to be found here. Fabrics, therefore, are never damaged in the cleaning process.

As an additional feature, the shop offers a special emergency service, available after regular working hours. If find yourself suddenly in need of Retson & Jimos service, call the shop at 293 or either one of the proprietors at 1309 or 1455, respectively.

COBS HOLD MOISTURE IN EXCESSIVELY DRY SOIL
Coffeeville, Kas.—(P)—Usually regarded as waste, or at best only fairly good for fuel, corn cobs are being used by farmers in this vicinity to hold moisture in an excessively porous soil.

In cultivated fields are occasional spots where the soil is lighter in color and drier than surrounding ground, and as a result of quick evaporation of moisture, crops do not thrive on them. The farmers plow up the dry spots, and bury a wagonload of corn cobs.

The former dry areas hold moisture as well as surrounding soil for two or three years, or until the cobs have been dissolved.

LIVESTOCK SHOW OPENS IN CHICAGO

Many Agricultural Champions to Be Named During Week of Exhibits

Chicago—(P)—The prized products of agrarian America vied for superiority today at the tribunal of highest award, the International Livestock Show. For one week, agriculture rules supreme.

Champions will be selected from America's best cattle. A 1931 king of wheat growers will be enthroned. The healthiest boy and girl in the land will be picked.

The inaugural pageantry of past exhibitions was augmented by record lists in every championship class. Every stall and space was filled with the best from thousands of farms. There were 12,000 and more cattle, horses, swine and sheep; more than 5,000 hoppers filled with the finest grains.

The exposition went collegiate today. Teams from three dozen colleges in the United States and Canada crowded the arena to judge livestock and crops.

Last year's livestock judging champions, from the Oklahoma Agricultural college, were back again. The North Carolina Agricultural college team was primed to contest the bid of the pickers from the Kansas State Agricultural college for the crops judging honors. Both teams have two wins; a third meant permanent possession of the trophy.

Who's who in the grain world hinged upon the judging today and tomorrow.

The prize feeders of the nation's youngsters were led into the arena in the opening contest of the 4-H club activities. More boys and girls than ever before have entered the exposition lists.

Nightly, hunters and jumpers, saddle horses and roadsters from many famed stables will step through their paces, seeking the coveted blue ribbons.

In an eye-opener yesterday, four youngsters from West Virginia won the none-collegiate livestock judging championship. The youths, victorious over 16 other teams, were George and James Williams, Edward Carothers and Lynn McQuaid, all from West Union.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM LARGE LOSSES

Employers Mutuals Provide Full Line of Fire Insurance

The insurance you need the most, say Appleton representatives of the Employers Mutuals, and which you must carry by all means, is that which will protect you against any large possible loss which will be a serious matter for you if it occurs without insurance.

Employers Mutuals, well known throughout the state for their carefully selected, provide a full line of fire insurance for commercial risks, residences and their contents.

This has been made possible through recent connections with some of the strongest mutual companies writing fire insurance in this country. Just as Employers Mutuals have built up their other lines, they have endeavored to secure many fine residences and large commercial risks.

The public needs this protection, and, realizing this, Employers Mutuals have added the fire line to their regular service. Policyholders and prospects of sister companies have long desired this service.

A substantial dividend is returned to policyholders on the fire line as well as on the regular Employers Mutual lines. It is not a matter of so much protection for so many dollars, for the Appleton office maintains complete service departments.

R. J. White and H. T. Nolan, managers of the Appleton office of the Employers Mutuals, will gladly give complete information. The office telephone number is 3264. Offices are maintained on the third floor of the Insurance building.
